

The image is a wide-angle photograph of a glacial landscape. In the foreground, several large, white icebergs of various sizes are scattered across a dark, rocky or sandy surface. The background features a range of snow-covered mountains under a clear blue sky. This image serves as a backdrop for a terminal window showing a series of command-line sessions related to network monitoring and stabilization.